

Elodie Burls | Where Thoughts Gather

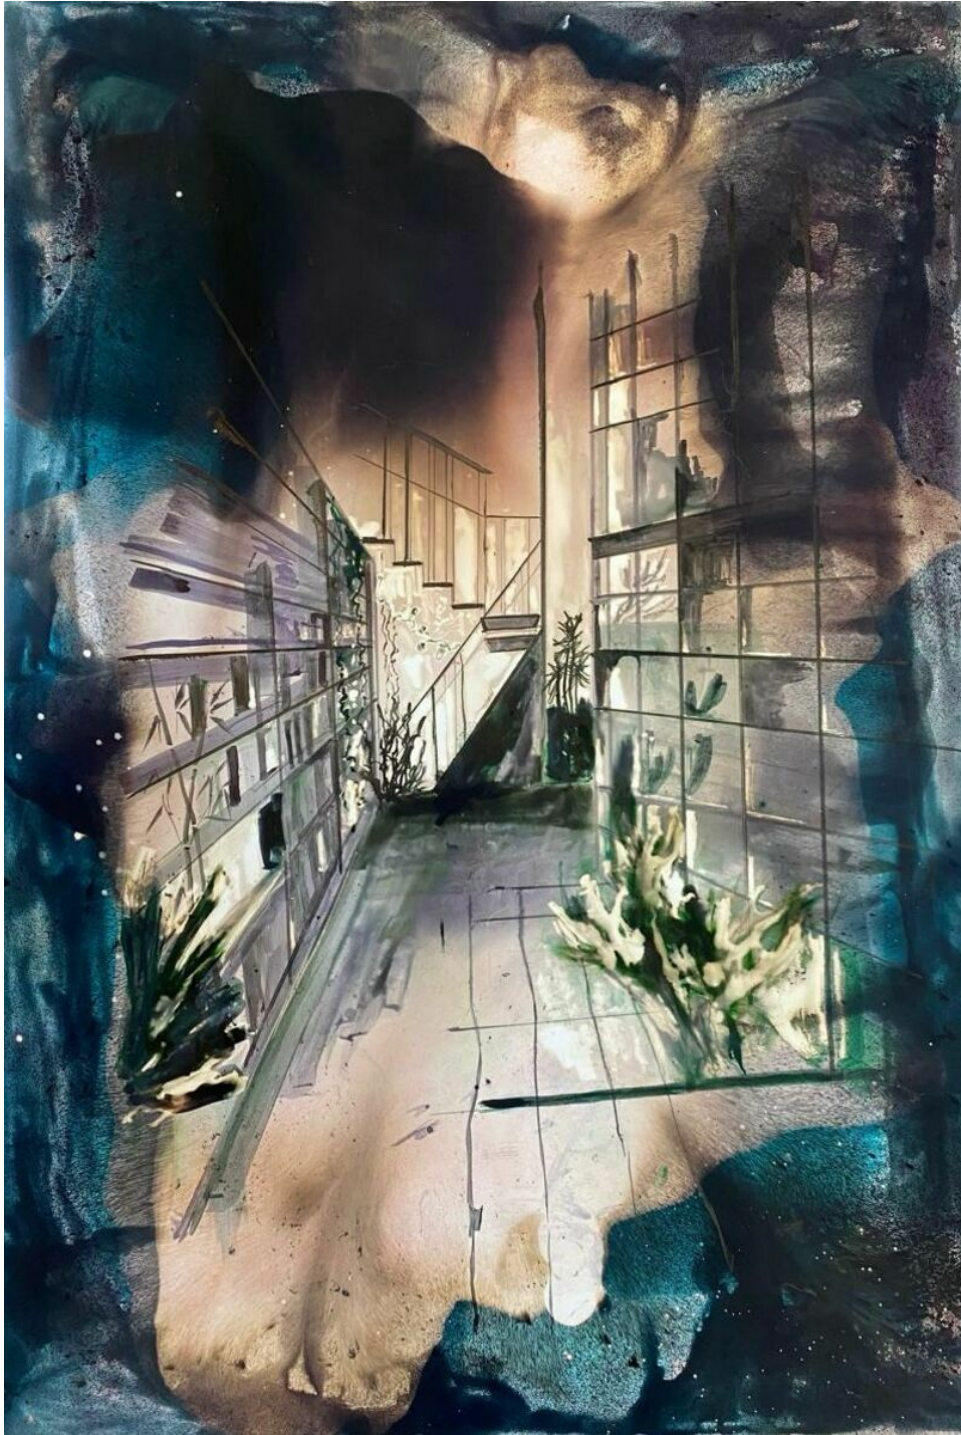

'Where Thoughts Gather' is an attempt at encapsulating the essence of my artistic inquiry. In these paintings, I invite viewers to step into liminal spaces where the perceived boundaries between inside and outside, nature and nurture, begin to blur.

Inspired by the fragility of our existence, I often incorporate permeable materials like glass, which symbolize the delicate balance between protection and vulnerability. As I create these threshold spaces, I ponder the future of our relationship with the natural world. Will we need to bring the outdoors in, to survive as a species?

My art imagines a world where the distinctions between interior and exterior, self and environment, are increasingly ambiguous. While my work touches on apocalyptic themes, it's tempered with a hopeful streak. I'm drawn to the possibility that, even in the face of uncertainty, we might find ways to adapt, to redefine our connection to the world around us.

The paintings in this show, including 'Reconsider', 'Tabula Rasa', and 'Home is where the chair is', offer glimpses into this uncertain future, inviting viewers to contemplate, to lighten up, and to reconsider their place within it.
